FEEDING & EDUCATING IMPOVERISHED CHILDREN IN PORT-AU-PRINCE, HAITI
PROVIDING HOPE & OPPORTUNITY FOR A BRIGHTER FUTURE

2014 ANNUAL REPORT
MESSAGE FROM THE FOUNDER & EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Dear Friends,

Over the past year, the food and education programs we fund in Port-au-Prince have continued to lovingly and effectively serve thousands of children in the Ti Plas Kazo neighborhood. Every year builds on the last and as you’ll read in this report, the opportunities for girls and boys to be nourished in body, mind and spirit have deepened in scope and impact, even amidst the ongoing challenges Haiti faces economically, politically, and environmentally.

Our devoted partner, Na Rive, stretched every dollar we sent to feed as many children as possible at the food program. They also supported each scholarship recipient and developed innovative ways to teach and train youth through after-school and summer camp programs. A key focus has been leadership development and skill building for self-sufficiency, and the positive ripple effects of children being nourished in these ways are felt every day throughout the neighborhood.

It’s been nearly 15 years since the first meal was served at the food program and the first school scholarships were given. Now, five former scholarship recipients who have graduated with post secondary degrees are sharing their gifts and gratitude as paid members of Na Rive’s Education Team and represent the next generation of leaders.

As we look back on all that was accomplished in 2014, we are deeply grateful for your generosity and compassion, which makes these programs possible. We feel blessed to be part of this heart-centered outreach and thank you for being part of it too.

With love,

Margaret Frost, Founder, What If? Foundation

Suzanne Alberga, Executive Director, What If? Foundation

“Our partnership with the What If? Foundation is unique, and is helping transform the community – child by child. Through the programs, we give the children hope and skills, so that one day they will be able to support themselves, their families, and improve conditions for others. We are preparing the next generation of Haitians.”

FOOD PROGRAM

“Five years since the earthquake and the great need for meals continues. With so many malnourished children, we are thankful we can give them food to stay alive. How beautiful that every one of us – including the What If donors – work together to make this happen.”

- Roselie Vicsama, Na Rive Food Program Team Leader

A severe drought in early 2014, and a rise in the cost of living, brought more children to the food program in search of their only meal of the day.

- Meals were served every weekday and cost approximately 65 cents each.
- An average of 1,400 children were served every Monday through Friday, totaling 336,000 meals over the year.
- Food was purchased from farmers’ markets and small distributors in Port-au-Prince, to support the local economy.
Na Rive’s six-week day camp has been described as a “joy-filled oasis,” providing girls and boys with a unique opportunity to play, to create, and to celebrate being children while learning income-producing skills.

- Classes included music, cooking, calligraphy, sewing, arts and crafts, English, and computer basics.
- A rare field trip to the beach for swimming and a farm to learn about agriculture was a highlight, as most children never have the opportunity to leave the inner city of Port-au-Prince.
This exciting project will provide a permanent and safe home for the current programs, and will bring to reality a vision we’ve long shared with Na Rive for creating a quality school for impoverished children.

In 2014, we raised additional funds to pay for the school building, and the finishing touches were put on the building design. With the design and engineering work completed, construction is set to begin in the spring of 2015!
